THE ANSWERS THEY'VE HEARD 500 TIMES

These read as dodging — not honesty.

x “I’m a perfectionist.”

x “I just work too hard.”

x “Honestly, I don’t have any weaknesses.”

 If it sounds like a humble-brag, they stop believing the rest of your answers.

THE 3-STEP FORMULA

Real, low-stakes, and clearly improving.

- 1 A real weakness — low stakes, honest
- 2 What you're actively doing about it
- 3 Proof it's already getting better

SOUNDS LIKE

"Public speaking used to make me freeze. I joined a college club to practise — now I present to 30 people without notes."

 Notice: it ends on growth, not on the flaw.

3 SAFE, HONEST OPTIONS

Adapt one — then add your ‘what I’m doing about it’.

✓ “I take on too much instead of delegating — I’m learning to ask for help earlier.”

✓ “I over-check my work — I now set a time limit and trust the first pass.”

✓ “Saying no was hard — I’ve started being honest about my bandwidth.”

 Pick one that’s actually true for you. Rehearsed honesty > polished lies.

PRACTISE BEFORE THE ROOM

Walk in ready for all 6.

- 1 Name a real, low-stakes weakness
- 2 Say what you're doing about it
- 3 End on proof it's improving
- 4 Skip 'perfectionist'
- 5 Rehearse it out loud

The weakness question is one of 6 every fresher gets. Practise them all with GY Fit.
