The salary question you freeze at.

Answer it wrong and you leave money on the table for years. 📌

NEVER LEAD WITH ONE NUMBER

A single figure boxes you in — high or low.

✗ Blurting the first number that comes to mind.

✓ Give a researched range for your role + city.

✗ “Whatever you offer is fine.”

✓ Let them name a figure first if you can.

💡 “No idea” reads as unprepared. A range reads as informed.

THE SCRIPT + YOUR RANGE

Calm, informed, and still flexible.

SAY THIS

“Based on the role and the market for freshers in [city], I’m looking at ₹X–₹Y. I’m flexible for the right growth and learning.”

💡 Anchor to the role and city — not to what you personally need this month.

HOW TO FIND YOUR RANGE

10 minutes of homework beats a nervous guess.

Ask seniors / alumni in the same role

Check listings for that role in your city

Factor your skills, then quote CTC clearly

Total package > base alone. Know both before you walk in.

KNOW YOUR WORTH

Numbers, not nerves.

- 1 Give a range, not a number
- 2 Research role + city first
- 3 Let them go first if you can
- 4 Quote CTC clearly
- 5 Stay flexible for growth
