

What India's hiring data is telling us right now.

Three signals we watch every month — and what each one means for you, whichever side of the table you're on.

Swipe for the read →

Indicative ranges — India talent-market signals, 2025-26.

Fresher demand is climbing.

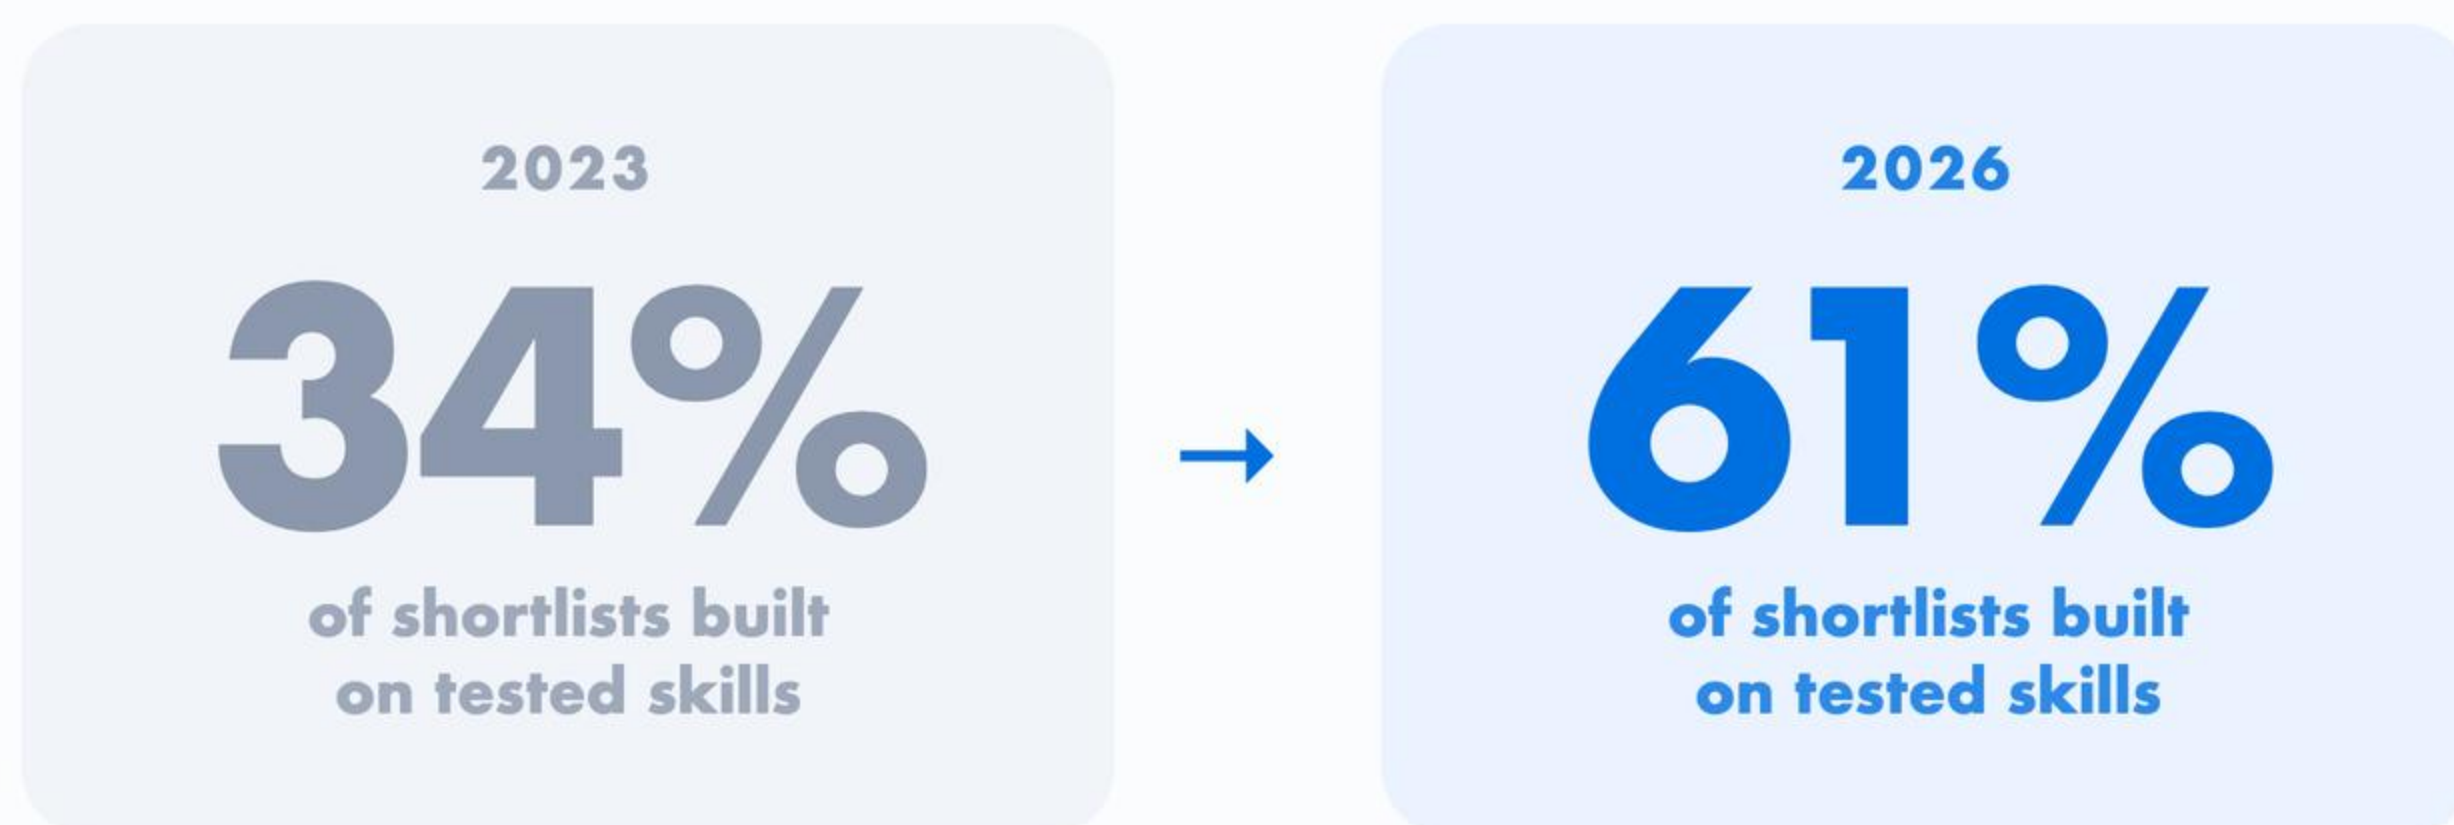

Year-on-year growth in entry-level openings. Consumer-facing and logistics roles are leading it.

If you're a fresher, the door is opening — but only for the ones who can prove readiness.

Skills-first hiring is accelerating.

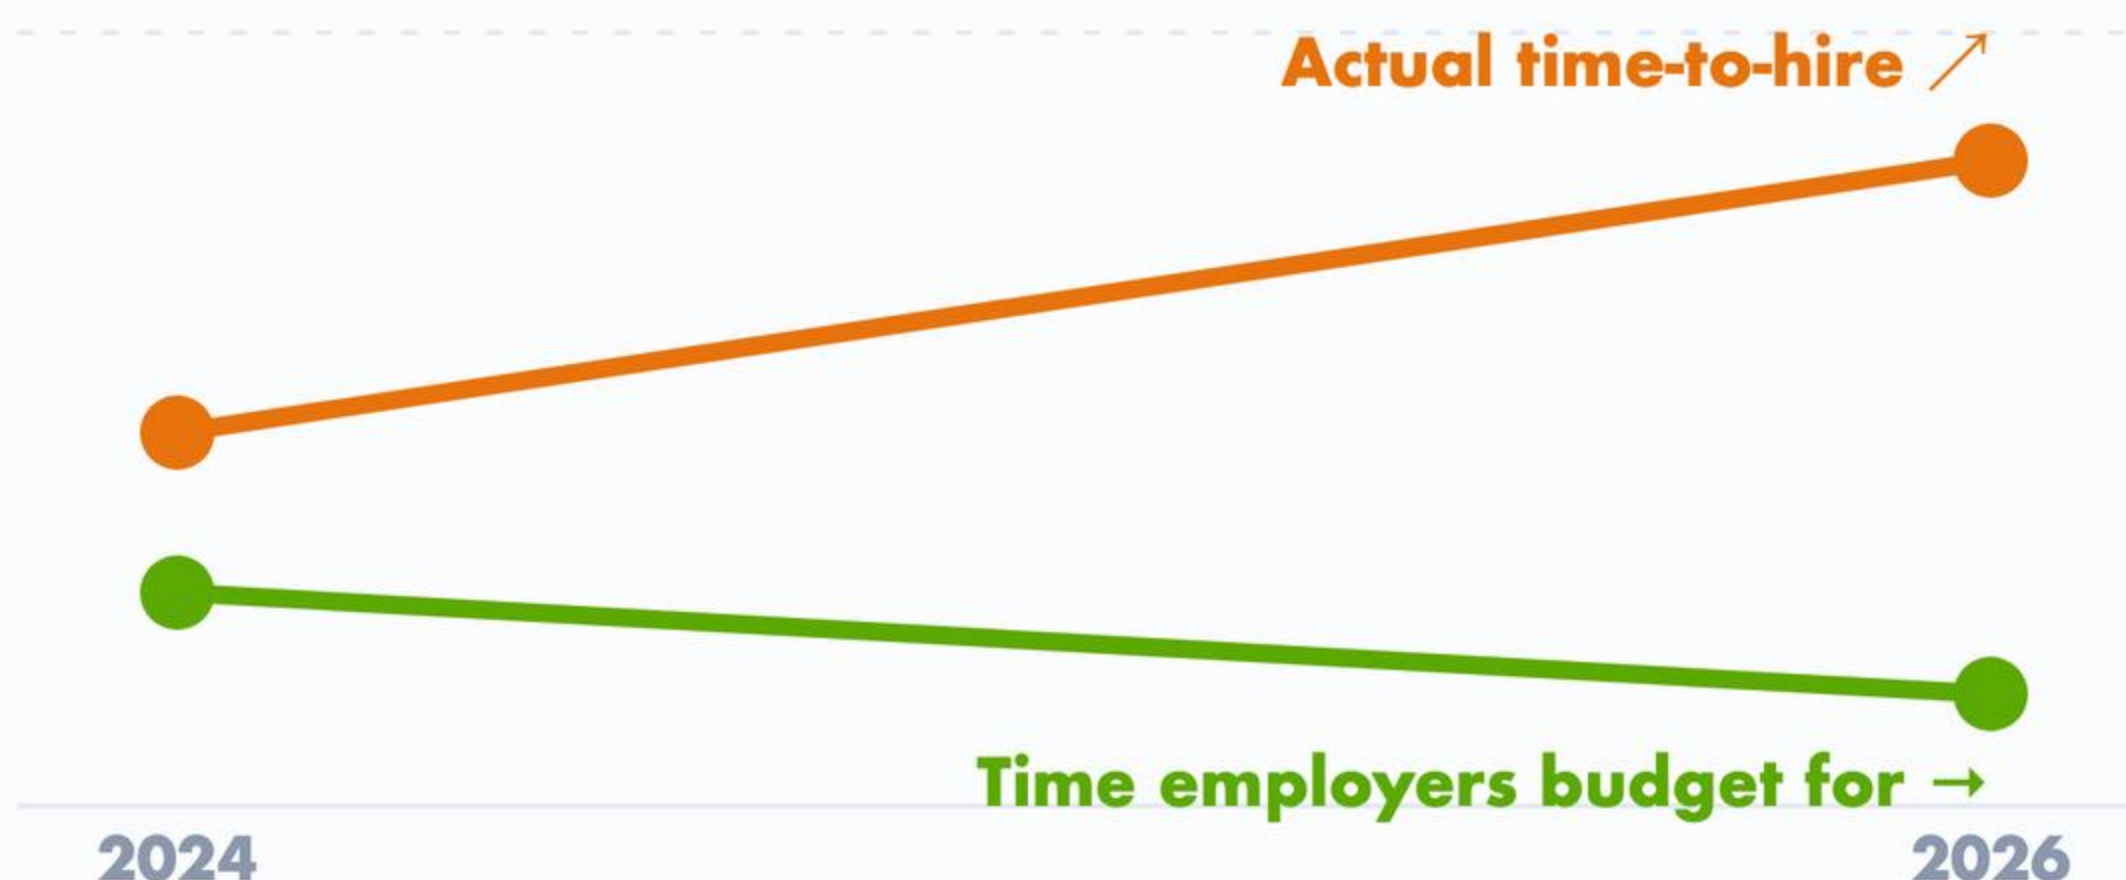

Degree filters are quietly giving way to proof. Employers increasingly shortlist on demonstrated skill, not pedigree.

A verified assessment is now worth more on a shortlist than another line on a CV.

Time-to-hire is under pressure.

Hiring plans keep assuming last year's timelines. Reality is stretching the other way — and the gap is where good candidates get lost.

Every extra week of process is a week your best candidate is being interviewed elsewhere.

01 Fresher demand is climbing
Prove readiness and you're in the room.

02 Skills-first hiring is accelerating
A tested skill beats another CV line.

03 Time-to-hire is under pressure
Speed is now a hiring advantage.

We publish this read every month.
Follow along and hire on evidence,
not vibes.

Follow for monthly reads →

groyouth.com

Indicative ranges — India talent-market signals, 2025-26.

