BAD ANSWER vs GOOD ANSWER

Same question, two outcomes

✗ “I was born in... then 10th... then college...” — your whole biography, no point.

✓ Present → your strength with proof → why this role.
30 seconds, done.

💡 They’re not asking for your history — they’re asking ‘why you, for this?’

THE 30-SECOND STRUCTURE

1 Present

One line on what you do or study right now — not where you were born.

2 Strength + proof

Your one best strength, backed by a number or a real example.

 One strength with proof beats five adjectives with none.

TIE IT TO THEM

3

Why this role

Match your strength to what they need — show you read the JD.

30-SEC EXAMPLE

"I'm a commerce grad who ran my college fest's sponsorships — closed ₹2L across 12 brands. I love turning cold outreach into yes's, which is exactly what this sales role needs."

PRACTISE ONCE, FREEZE NEVER • GY FIT

Structure beats rambling.

- 1 Present — what you do now
- 2 Strength + proof (one, with a number)
- 3 Why this role — tie it to them
